CONCEPT NOTE

In the last two decades, studying literature has diversified from printed pages to media studies, performance studies and such other non conventional literary domains. The present pandemic has brought not only teaching and learning but regular life to a challenging change where people, desperate to communicate in social curfew, has resorted to electronic media as the only safe alternative. The use of e-media in teaching and learning has now staked its claim to not only being an important subsidiary to regular academic activity but also as the future platform of academic activity at all levels. It is already being called 'Education 4.0' model and is poised to take over the Indian scenario as early as 2025. Similarly, the effect of the pandemic is being felt in the way our access to conventional media has for example undertaken a shift - the day is truly on us when the shift from printed media to digital media has become an incontrovertible fact of life. Falling sales of printed publications to increasing number of hits on web portals are all, therefore, part of the same story.

In an attempt to shed light on this transition and to introduce young students to these domains Department of English, Vivekananda Mission Mahavidyalaya in collaboration with the IQAC of the college is organizing a one day state level webinar titled Desperate Communications: Studying Films and Other Media in our Diseased Times with particular focus on the importance of media studies and film studies in this trying time and the vistas they can open before the new learners. We cordially invite interested faculty members and students to join our humble endeavour to gain further insights from our esteemed speakers and to enrich our discussion with their valued observations.
